

If the appt box turns red after the appointment is completed, it means that there were not enough services that were completed to make a “value” appt. In other words, the appt was too long for the services completed. When the appt box turns green, it means that there were enough services completed for the length of the appt – it was a “value” appt.